James Muriuki

in transition

opening Sat 15 November 2014
from 12 - 6pm

15.11.14 to 10.01.15

James Muriuki is an artist who has been working primarily with photography in the last 10 years. He is keenly interested in the transitional space of a people, using Nairobi context as the main point of reference. He engages with the city and by extension with a country in transformation.

Over the last four years, he has developed a body of work that looks at the symbols of this transition. These symbols are an illustration of the imagination of a society and the identity it wishes to project. This exhibition is a glance at a section of works that he worked on and continues to explore in his practice.
